This training will uncover some of the trauma dynamics that can get involved into parenting. Parenting stress, the central trauma roles and safer parenting strategies will be offered to attendees.

This training explores one of the more confounding components of trauma: intergenerational transmission. Attendees will be able to connect the stages of child development and trauma and how to better intervene in the short term and parenting in the long term.

Using the foundations of SAMHSA’s model and the National Child Traumatic Stress Network, resources and activities will be provided.
